

A lista que segue é extraída do Index Fungorum, mantido pela CABI Biosciences (<http://www.indexfungorum.org/>), onde a nomenclatura e taxonomia micológica vem sendo mantida e actualizada. Para além do levantamento das fontes originais, este recurso tem sido aperfeiçoado em função dos parentescos filogenéticos deduzidos de sequências de DNA, esclarecendo sinonímias por um lado, e reagrupando os táxones. Esta revolução na sistemática dos fungos tornou praticamente irreconhecível o que nem há 10 anos se considerava bem estabelecido em Micologia. Estando a respectiva fonte em permanentemente actualização, assim este documento é actualizado com a periodicidade possível.

A informação disponível foi transposta de modo a organizar os nomes genéricos por famílias e, dentro delas, estabelecer as sinonímias. Opções que foram feitas e observações adicionais:

1. Trata-se duma lista de nomes de géneros classificados apenas nas classes Agaricomycetes, Dacrymycetes e Tremellomycetes (Basidiomycota), e na ordem Pezizales (Ascomycota). Estes grupos abrangem a quase totalidade das espécies que interessam aos que se iniciam na Micologia na perspectiva de “macrofungos”.
2. Todos os nomes genéricos para os quais é proposto um segundo nome mais correcto são apresentados em tipo mais pequeno, com a indicação entre parêntesis do nome que aparentemente se deve adoptar. As sinonímias apresentadas nem sempre são explícitas na fonte, mas resultam do princípio de transitividade, por exemplo: Kneiffia Fr. = Kneiffiella Underw., Kneiffiella = Neokneiffia Sacc., Neokneiffia = Hyphoderma Wallr., donde Kneiffia = Hyphoderma (Meruliaceae, Polyporales).
3. Nalguns casos sem sinónimos (por exemplo Grandinia Fr.) a base de dados não lista nenhuma espécie e usa-se também o tipo pequeno.
4. A diferenciação entre nomes correctos e meros sinónimos visa antecipar a dimensão da taxonomia de cada família, que deverá convergir para uma lista de dimensão semelhante à que é aqui representada pelos nomes em tipo normal. É notável o efeito de simplificação que tem em várias famílias, como nas Entolomataceae (quase todos os nomes são remetidos ao género Entoloma), nas Schizophyllaceae (Schizophyllum) ou nas Suillaceae (Suillus).
5. Portanto, quando se referem colectivamente “géneros” trata-se na verdade de nomes genéricos, não de táxones.
6. O propósito das recomendações de substituição é corresponderem mais fielmente à classificação natural, e se não são ainda consensuais, presume-se que se está em vias disso. Presume-se, pois, que Hypholoma e Stropharia passarão a dar lugar a Psilocybe, por exemplo. Por outro lado, esta transitoriedade implica algumas ambiguidades, não o caso das aparentes duplicações — Leptochaete Lév. 1846 (Hymenochaetaceae) e Leptochaete Zmitr. & Spirin 2006 (Agaricomycetes: posição incerta) ou Botryobasidium Donk (Botryobasidiaceae) e Botryobasidium Rick (Thelephoraceae) — mas sinonímias contraditórias (caso de Dacryopsis Nees 1816, que aparece como tendo posição incerta nos Agaricomycetes mas para o qual o nome correcto seria Dacrymyces, Dacrymycetaceae; também Roseofavolus T. Hatt. 2003 e Rhodon Niemelä 2005, Polyporaceae, ou Matula Massee 1888, Corticiaceae, apontam para sinónimos noutras famílias), ou mal definidas (Ceratella (Quél.) Bigeard & H. Guill. 1913, Clavulinaceae). A tendência é para ficarem resolvidos a breve trecho, como foi com os casos de Hygrocybe (já aparece nas Hygrophoraceae) ou Pleurotopsis e Urceolus (cujos sinónimos foram corrigidos)...
7. Pela mesma ordem de ideias, é natural que muitas posições incertas deixem de sê-lo, como é o caso de Rickenella (saiu das Tricholomataceae para posição incerta nos Agaricomycetes) ou de Panaeolus (das Psathyrellaceae para posição incerta nos Agaricales), ou ainda as numerosas ordens de Agaricomycetes ainda sem subclasse definida.
8. Em relação à versão de 2006 houve várias famílias que, pela massa de saídas e/ou entradas de géneros, sofreram grandes redefinições, caso das Meruliaceae, das Polyporaceae, das Agaricaceae, das Marasmiaceae ou das Strophariaceae, resultando grupos que exemplificam como a morfologia macroscópica e mesmo microscópica são insuficientes para a construção duma taxonomia natural. Tais redefinições podem ter grande impacto na utilização de critérios de identificação tradicionalmente utilizados para delimitar famílias ou outros níveis taxonómicos.
